CRISIS MANAGEMENT AND CONTINGENCY

CHALLENGE

The outbreak of armed violence between the government and conflicting parties in Juba, South Sudan led to a severe deterioration in the nation’s security and stability. Organizations operating within the nation required emergency assistance to evacuate their staff amid the climax of the nation’s intense fighting and violence. At the time of incident, Constellis held existing contracts for evacuation services from South Sudan with four client organizations and an additional 11 organizations approached Constellis to evacuate their non-Sudanese staff from the country.

SOLUTION/SERVICES

Upon deciding to evacuate client personnel, Constellis immediately activated its crisis response team and set up additional management structures to coordinate and control the evacuation operations. Led by the Dubai office, this effort was executed by the regional management team in East Africa (Nairobi).

Within 12 hours upon the decision to air evacuate client personnel, Constellis conducted the first air movement from Kenya to South Sudan and started the evacuation of clients from Juba International Airport. In support of the air operation, Constellis successfully conducted vehicle-borne security escorts throughout Juba to facilitate the concentration of client personnel at Constellis’ facility in South-east Juba and there onwards escorting to Juba International Airport.

Constellis’ forward deployed Field Security Advisors (FSAs) were able to medically assist clients who had suffered from severe injuries resulting from their exposure to the armed conflict in Juba. In total, over 50 client personnel were evacuated from South Sudan within 72 hours.
One of the greatest challenges for organizations operating on a global scale is the ability to seamlessly navigate a business environment that is constantly changing. CHEMICAL MATERIALS REMOVAL

CHALLENGE

The Syrian chemical materials removal project was authorized to eliminate chemical materials from Syria in accordance with a threat reduction program regulated by the U.S. Department of Defense. Constellis’ scope on the project included forward logistics support, equipment recovery and accountability and local purchase and delivery of more than 3,200 items.

SOLUTION/SERVICES

Key to the successful completion of the project was providing rapid procurement and transportation capabilities. In addition to supporting the morale, welfare and recreation mission for the transport, Constellis provided GPS tracking systems for all heavy equipment purchased and operating in Syria. The GPS solutions provided personnel, equipment and necessary resources to allow for tracking that was secure, online and web-based. After completion of the chemical removal procedures, we coordinated between other programs to transport all equipment from Syria within 40 days. We delivered trucks, shipment materials, cranes, and many other items of equipment to the resulting logistics team within the allotted timeframe. Once all declared chemical materials had been removed from Syria, we executed plans to demobilize the equipment and supplies by overseeing the transfer of custody between the U.N. and U.S. agencies.

OIL & GAS PROTECTIVE SECURITY

CHALLENGE

A major international oil company was awarded a contract to harness Iraq’s natural gas reserves from existing concessions, partnering with a national provider to rehabilitate and revitalize energy infrastructure across the country’s southern fields. To achieve this, the client required an extensive but flexible security solution to provide security transportation to large numbers of engineers and subcontractors across the Basra province. While initially limited to supporting security for mobile teams, Constellis’ services were subsequently expanded to include intelligence threat monitoring, static guarding, security training, HSE support and incident management and response capability.

SOLUTION/SERVICES

For three years, Constellis provided a fleet of 68 armored GXRs formed into 17x4 vehicle personal security details (PSDs) outfitted to client specification. The PSD teams were responsible for securing five separate camps and were further supported by a network of support staff backed by a robust operations center based at the client headquarters in Basra, Iraq. Additionally, Constellis provided static guarding at the camps to include specialist personnel responsible for badging processes, CCTV surveillance and technical access control systems. During the mobilization phase of the contract, Constellis PSD teams drove over 4.7 million miles in support of hundreds of successful missions.
